PHILLIE NATIONALS AND BOSTON AMERICANS READY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Philadelphia Nationals and the Boston Americans, respective pennant winners in their leagues, are about to reap the financial rewards of their season-long efforts in the coming world's series. Owners and players are expected to divide more than $200,000 paid in at the gates by the baseball fans of the two series most interested in the series. With the immense seating capacity of the Boston Nationals' new stadium, which will be used for the games in that city, the receipts should be larger than in any previous contests in one park.

The Braves' stadium will seat more than 50,000 and the receipts should exceed $50,000 per game. In Philadelphia the Phillies' park will not hold more than 20,000 and the gate is not likely to be more than $40,000. Even under these conditions the players and magnates will split the major portion of $240,000, in case the series title is won in four games straight and more than double that sum should the series go six or seven games. In any event it appears probable that new gate receipt records will be established, since the present high figures are $490,442, collected in the eight-game series between the New York Giants and Boston Red Sox in 1912, while the individual game record is held by the opening contest of the Athletic-Giants series of 1911 played at New York when 38,218 spectators paid $77,559 to witness the contest.

It is certain the players and stockholders of the two contending clubs in the coming series will not have cause for complaint regarding the financial returns and division of the same. The rivalry of the players and the interest of the fans assures big gate receipts and the national agreement and the national commission rulings provide for the distribution of the same along the following lines: The national commission receives 10 per cent of the receipts of each and every game; of the remaining 90 per cent the players take 60 per cent and the club owners 40 per cent of the first four games. After four games have been played the players cease to share in the receipts and the club owners take the full 90 per cent remaining after the national commission has levied its assessment.

Since the world's series came under the official control of organized baseball the total receipts have amounted to $2,168,273. Of this huge sum the twenty clubs participating in the games between 1903 and 1914 have divided $1,094,517 while the players who won and lost the championships in these years split $872,998 on a basis of 60 per cent to the winning team and 40 per cent to the losing combination. The national commission has received $211,546 and the coming Red Sox-Phillies series will be welcome for the large reserve of the commission has melted away in the past two years owing to the heavy expense incurred in the struggle between organized and independent baseball interests.
